Deadlock drags on over treatment-plant engineering fees

Firm argues delays, changes and unforeseen problems increased costs -- but Bethel boards balk

By MICHAEL DANIELS

An hour-and-a-half long executive session Monday evening failed to resolve the months-long question of how much additional money, if any, the town will pay for engineering work on the upgrade project at the wastewater treatment plant.
Town officials, however, say they believe they can see a light at the end of the pipe.

At issue is a request from the town's consultant engineering firm for an additional $87,000 in fees.

The firm, Wright-Pierce Engineering, had initially projected that engineering fees for the project would be $287,881. That figure was based on a cost for the total project of $1.2 million, but that total cost has nearly doubled since the initial estimate, and a number of difficulties have been encountered with the project -difficulties Wright-Pierce argues it could not have foreseen.

The engineering firm now says the additional $87,000 is necessary if all the services called for in its contract with the town are to be

The increase has not gone over well with the Board of Selectmen or Budget Committee.

Part of the problem is timing. The increase was first presented to the town in July -- only two months after town officials had been forced to ask voters to approve an additional $200,000 in spending on the

Parents and teachers grade AES multi-age classroom format

When SAD44 approved a plan to combine grade levels at the Andover Elementary School this school year, some parents worried the change would harm their children's education. Attempts in earlier years to place different-aged students in the same classroom had not worked well, leaving parents leery of trying it again.

But with declining enrollment at the school and a longer-term worry AES might eventually be closed if full services were maintained, the plan was put in place. First- and second-grade students now share a single classroom, under teacher Kathy Conrad, and third and fourth-graders are in another, with Gail Brooks.

How is the format- working? "Multi-age is alive and kicking in Andover," AES lead teacher John Emery told the School Board last week. "There have been a few bumps, but it's a process that gets ironed out as we go."

Brooks described the multi-age format in her classroom. Rather than trying to teach separate material to the third and fourth graders, she said, she teaches the same things to all 21 students.

In science, for instance, the students recently studied the topic of space. "It takes two years to go through the whole science program (for the two grades)," she said. Brooks simply alternates, on a twoyear cycle, the group of topics covered each year. The children study each topic in more depth than in a single-grade setting, she said.

CHRISTMAS FOR FAMILIES '98

Christmas is nearing and we would once again like to call upon the community to help us make Christmas special for families that might not otherwise have one. For anyone that doesn't know, Christmas for Families is a nonprofit organization that obtains names of families that need help and through donations of time, money, articles of clothing, toys, books, food, etc., meets the needs of those families.

In the past, we have had requests from community members that wanted to pay for a boy or a girl, certain age or for a whole family. If anyone wishes to do that this year, they should contact Nina at the address or phone number below.

There will be Benefit Bingo at the American Legion in Locke Mills on Dec. 4 at 6 p.m. All proceeds will go to families in need.

The families may be assured that their names remain anonymous. Christmas for Families tries to work with other area organizations so that there is not a duplication of items. We try to make sure that all members of the family receive something, as teenagers love Christmas as much as the younger children. Please feel free to contact Nina Wheeler at 836-3600 or 836-3663 for information, or if you need help or know someone who does. Also, there will be forms at Rebel Restaurant in West Bethel to be filled out and dropped in a box there.

VISIT, SUPPORT THE LIBRARY

To the Editor:

Last week's article on the local libraries was excellent. As president of the Bethel Library Association, I would like to commend the work of our present librarian, Michelle Conroy, and her predecessor, Betsy Raymond, in developing and implementing the strategies which produced the growth in circulation and in number of cardholders. The library staff and volunteers, as well as members of the Board of Trustees, also deserve congratulations.

The library is in the midst of its annual giving campaign, which will support the addition of the Winnebago software for cataloging and circulation. Patrons preferring the traditional card catalog will be able to use that method, while still benefiting from the wonders of the new system in tracking the whereabouts of books. The board is continuing to explore options for future expansion and welcomes suggestions for ways to improve our service to the community. Individuals with donations or suggestions are welcome to contact me or the librarian.

The board and staff of the library encourage your readers to visit the library and enjoy the collection of books, periodicals, audio and video tapes and our computer with Internet access.

TEEN SEXUALITY DISCUSSION

To the Editor:

On Oct. 28, Maria Brandon Drevitch spoke to the ninth-grade class of Telstar High School at the FACT Workshop. Later that evening, she spoke to the THS and TMS parents. The topic was "Teenage Sexuality."

Liwas fortunate to hear some of her presentation. Having two teenage soffs and having been a teenager myself, I was under the impression I was wise to teenage sexuality issues.

Ms. Drevitch enlightened me. Anyone who has a child in the ninth grade at Telstar, should ask him or her about Ms. Drevitch's presentation. For anyone who missed her presentation to the parents, Karen Bean, counselor at TMS, will lead a discussion, based on Ms. Drevitch's talk, on Thursday, Nov. 19, at 7 p.m. in the Telstar library following the TMS parent group meeting.

To the Editor:

The Bethel Area Chamber of Commerce has a number of exciting

community events planned for this winter season.

The Country Christmas in Bethel month-long holiday event starts Thanksgiving weekend and continues right up till Christmas. We hope that Bethel area residents enjoy participation in all the many events. There has been one location change that we want to make note of -- the Taste of Bethel and Theme Wreath Auction, scheduled for Saturday, Dec. 5 from noon to 2 p.m., will be held at Telstar High School caleteria instead of the Bethel Inn Conference Center. This is going to allow for lots of space for the restaurants and for plenty of seating. Tickets will be sold for 50 cents each, which makes it a very affordable way to "taste test" many of the culinary delights the local restaurants

Plans for the Bethel Winter Fest are coming along nicely. Special events coordinator Paula Wheeler has had two construction meetings for the World's Largest Snowman, and the group is fine-tuning their strategies. The chamber was pleased to appear before the Bethel selectmen to answer questions regarding safety and feasibility of such a large undertaking. We sense a real excitement throughout the region about this project. The media has really picked up on this -- Maine Times, Wall Street Journal, Lewiston Sun, Maine Public Broadcasting, Ski Magazine, to name a few. The Maine Public Broadcasting would like to film a segment of their "Made in Maine" show from the base of the snowman on Jan. 9, in addition to a couple of shows prior to that date showing the community involvement in the project.

Besides the snowman, dozens of special events are planned for the weekend (Jan. 9-10), which are highlighted in the Winter Fest flyer. Feel free to stop in the office or call to pick up one.

CHRISTMAS FOR CHILDREN

To the Editor:

As Christmas approaches, we will all soon be scurrying about to make sure that we have purchased the appropriate presents for family and friends. Some local families are not as fortunate. Over the past decade the Bethel Rotary Club has sponsored the Christmas for Children campaign. During this time, this important program has raised nearly $70,000 and provided assistance for well over 1,000 children. Because of the contributions from everyone, Santa's job has been made a little easier. The goal of this program is to be sure that every child in the SAD44 area has the opportunity to wake up on Christmas morning and find some gifts under the tree. As this program has evolved, the need for this assistance has become increasingly evident.

I am writing to ask people to consider making a donation to this proven program. The Bethel Rotary Club will once again use these donations to purchase gift certificates for toys and other important necessities for needy families. We would appreciate and make use of donations in any amount. Checks should be made out to the Bethel Rotary Club -- Christmas for Children and mailed to the address listed below.

Thanks to the generosity of community members, Santa's sleigh will be sure to visit every home in the SAD44 area once again this year. On behalf of the entire Bethel Rotary Club, please accept my best wishes for a Happy and Healthy Holiday Season.

By MIKE BROWN

The Maine Senate Democrats had a sweet tooth caucus last week in the State House amid their $18 * million creation -- reconstruction rumble. It was their first get-together since they won reelection as a majority. And they did it by winning one more seat than they had last session.

The head count now is 20 Democrats, 14 Republicans and one Independent, Jill Goldthwait of Bar Harbor, who usually votes for Democratic initiatives and spending bills.

No surprises in D-leadership. Mark Lawrence of Kittery Point will return as president for his fourth Senate term (plus two terms in the House). Rochelle Pingree of North Haven will again be majority leader and Ann Rand of Portland re-ups as assistant majority leader. Perhaps the D's think their success involves longevity, but both Lawrence and Pingree will be in their fourth and final terms because of the term limits law. It could be more the visibility factor. Lawrence may have his eye on the First Congressional District seat and Pingree on the Blaine

The Pingree scenario is interesting. She's practically a sycophant of Gov. King. With two more years in the Senate majority klieg lights, then as whatever King cabinet appointment she wants two years hence, Pingree may see herself entering the gubernatorial race in four years after King leaves. Her problem, seemingly insurmountable, is John Baldacci, who is already posturing himself for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination. The odds on Pingree defeating Baldacci for the nomination are somewhat humorous.

Senate president-elect Lawrence already has announced the two-year program facing the Republicans -- more of the same. That means, of course, one-party state budgets in league with Gov. King disenfranchising Republican legislators and their electors. And rowdy sailors on shore leave with pockets full of tax cash and more spinach muscles (King and the D's jacked up the state budget half a billion dollars over the past four years).

The D's are admittedly savvy pols. They have appropriated motherhood themes like education that resonate at the ballot box. "Nothing's too good for the kids'" stuff. Education unionists vote heavily for the D's despite the fact that Maine taxpayers have been pouring billions into education over the decades and the kids are getting more incorrigible and dumber by the year. When the kids get lower test scores, the academics and educators lower the test criteria and yell for more money.

The D's say they will reform education by making the fiscal education formula even more complex and unworkable in the next two years. Pingree says the D's will be hawking for more funds to buy out private land for public access. D's call it land conservation. The public has said twice that enough is enough for land purchase moneys. No matter, say King and the D's, we'll bond creatively like we did with the $138 million no-publicreferendum scam bond vote to spruce up the State House and build a new bar hotel.

And the D-winner is, according to Pingree: "There will be more focus on the rural economy." Translated that means a sop to the northern lesser of the two Maine's which the D's and King have been stiffing for four years except at vote-getting time.

The Senate R's are in a hang-dog mood. They will caucus on Monday, Nov. 23, to sort out leadership positions. Whether minority leader Jan Amero and assistant leader Leo Kieffer will be repeat candidates is not certain. If so, or not, there probably will be opposition. Possibly mulling over a charge at leadership are Senators Jim Libby, Rick Bennett and Phil Harriman.

The House R's fell short of majority but picked up a couple of seats over last session. If re-counts don't change the numbers, the tally stands at D79-R71 with one Independent. Look for Tom Murphy of Kennebunk to be minority leader and Dick Campbell of Holden as assistant.

The lock on House Speaker seems to be Steve Rowe of Portland, who would be in final term before term-limited. And will John Martin, once canned as speaker by the Democrats for his "ballotgate" association, elect him as majority leader in a position to run for speaker two years hence when Rowe is out?

The D's will probably re-appoint, as they have the majority votes to do so, all incumbent constitutional officers (attorney general, treasurer, secretary of state and auditor), House Clerk Joe Mayo and Senate Secretary Joy O'Brien. To the victor belongs the spoils, er, taxes poke.

Snow causes accidents

BETHEL--A rollover on a slippery road sent a Bethel woman to the hospital Tuesday morning with bumps and bruises. Tammy Ward, 39, was traveling west on Route 2 when her vehicle struck ice and went off the road, according to Police Chief Darren Tripp. She was taken to Stephen's Memorial Hospital by Bethel Rescue, Her vehicle, a 1990 Chevrolet Astrovan, sustained $5,000 in damage. Ward was wearing a seat belt. Also Tuesday morning, a 1996 Dodge Neon driven by Katherine Grover, of South Paris, went off the road on the Sunday River Road S-curves. 57, of South Paris, went off the road on the Sunday River Road S-curves after hitting ice and snow, according to Tripp. Grover was wearing a seat belt, and was not injured. Her car received $2,000 in damage. A number of other accidents were also reported in the Bethel area Tuesday morn-

Dumpsters to stay put NEWRY--Selectmen decided Tuesday to leave dumpsters located in and around Sunday River Ski Resort in place unless they receive a petition from residents to remove individual dumpsters. Residents of Sunday River Village had reported items other than household trash have been left near that dumpster by nonresidents. After contacting the town's waste contractor, town officials learned the cost for emptying outlying dumpsters is no greater individually than that of servicing the more centrally located ones at the town's fire stations. The selectmen had earlier considered moving some of the outlying trash receptacles to the Sunday River Fire Station.

BHS receives first phase match

BETHEL--Charles Raymond, chairman of the Board of Trustees of the Bethel Historical Society, announced this week that the society has qualified for the first stage of the matching $75,000 challenge grant made in March by the Betterment Fund. Recently, the organization received $25,000 from the Betterment Fund to assist with the purchase of the property adjoining the Dr. Moses Mason House, which will be the site of the society's new museum facility to be known as the Robinson House. The Betterment Fund will match funds raised in the renovation stage of the project up to $25,000 and in the final phase (endowment of the Regional History Center) also at the $25,000 level. "We of course are very pleased with this contribution," said Raymond in announcing the gift. "We are extremely grateful to all those who made this match possible," he added. The society is currently conducting a capital campaign to raise more than $900,000 for the facility. To date, nearly a third of this total has been raised in cash, stocks, gifts of property, and pledges.

Transit committee appointed

BETHEL--The Board of Selectmen has appointed seven members to a new transportation committee. At their next meeting, Dec. 7, the selectmen plan to come up with a mission for the committee. Appointed Monday were: Steve Wight, Bruce Powell, Robin Zinchuk, Freda Davis, Glenn Gordon and Robert Owen. An eighth applicant, Scott A Riccio, was turned down, with selectmen agreeing he lived too far from the area -- South Portland. The board, however, suggested the new committee might call on Riccio as a consultant, since he was willing to share his extensive experience in transportation (he is director of sales and marketing for Maine Line Motorcoach Company/Maine Line Tours, and has served on several regional transportation committees). At its next meeting the board plans to develop a specific mission for the new committee, which is expected to focus on the transit situation between Bethel and Sunday River Ski Resort in Newry. .

Town calls the exterminator

WATERFORD--A visit from a pest control company last week brought town employees some relief from a cluster fly infestation in the Town Office and Fire Station. Employees had complained the insects have been in the lights, on the floor and crawling across their desks for several months. The initial spraying cost $300. The pest control company will return monthly, at a cost of $40 each, until the flies are completely

McLaughlin Foundation receives grant

PARIS--The McLaughlin Foundation, the nonprofit organization stewarding the late Bernard McLaughlin's 60-year-old garden in South Paris, received a grant of $1,500 from The Kenduskeag Foundation for needed received a grant of $1,500 from The Kenduskeag Foundation for needed front-of-house work. The grant will cover the first phase of the work to be done -- clearing of overgrown foundation plantings and rehabilitation of the front entry walk and steps. The front-of-house rehabilitation plan is part of an overall master plan completed by Barba Architecture and Preservation and has been approved by the foundation's Board and Garden Advisory Committee. Photographic records show that in the 19th century, Norway and South Paris homes did not have foundation plantings. Most homes had plain front lawns defined by gated picket fences. The plan for The McLaughlin Foundation includes removal of shrubs and the installation of granite front steps and non-concrete paths. Eventually a fence may be installed. a fence may be installed.

Train service back to arbitration

PORTLAND--A disagreement over the speed of passenger trains will once again send a proposal for Portland-to-Boston Amtrak service to a federal arbitrator. State planners want the trains to travel up to 79 miles per hour to make the trip competitive with the time it takes to travel in an automobile. But the track owner, Guilford Transportation Industries says trains cannot travel safely at that speed on the rail the state plans to use. If the arbitrator rules against Maine, the maximum speed will likely be 59 miles per hour. Other problems needing arbitration have delayed the planned resumption of passenger service for about five years.

Jellyfish found in pond

MAIDSTONE, N.H.--A Vermont fisherman discovered a colony of rare freshwater jellyfish while fly fishing in west Mountain Pond last month. There had been no previously published records of the creatures in Vermont, according to a natural history professor at Lyndon State College. The jellyfish are approximately the size of a quarter. The colony reportedly covered an extensive area of the 65-acre pond.

Fewer hunters in Vermont

MONTPELIER, Vt.--Vermont's woods and fields are filled with fewer hunters than ever this deer season. Although officials estimate 11,000 deer will be taken between now and the close of hunting season Nov. 29, the number of hunters is declining. Like 31 other states Vermont saw the number of licensed hunters drop from 1987 to 1997, with last year's decrease 1.4 percent. Nationally, the number of licensed hunters dropped 2 percent from 1996 to 1997. A spokesman for the Vermont Fish and Wildlife Department cited several reasons for his state's decline: development, making less hunting territory available; more posting of private land; fewer younger people taking up the sport. Despite the decline, Vermont still has one of the highest per capita rates of hunting in the nation, with 80,800 licensed deer hunters last season.

Resident input sought on mill smell

WESTBROOK--Residents near the Sappi Westbrook paper mill will be asked by DEP to report how the rotten-egg smell emitted by the mill impacts their health and use of their property. The odor does not violate air quality laws, but the reports could be used at a later date in a lawsuit claiming the emissions are a public nuisance. In 1997, the company said it would consider putting in place technology to reduce the smell and aid in meeting federal guildelines in future years. It did not, however, follow through. The smell is produced in connection with byproducts of the mill's pulp-making process. mill's pulp-making process.

at the East Bethel Road intersection. The suggestion was made to move the intersection to a location a short distance north of the current

Other suggestions included adding a turning lane for southbound traffic headed for the Gore Road, placing a crosswalk across Route 26 and improving visibility at the rise on Route 26 by a combination of cutting and filling.

Bob Watson, MDOT's project manager, said Wednesday he has drawn up a vertical layout for Route 26 that incorporates cutting and filling that should make the transition to abutters' driveways a smoother

Moving the East Bethel Road intersection, however, does not appear feasible, Watson said. Wetland impacts and problems with access to properties currently at the end of the road will probably prevent changing the intersection's location, he said. Instead, MDOT will have to concentrate on improving the current intersection.

The turning lane to Mt. Abram will appear in Watson's drawings, but he has not yet begun work on realigning the three intersections. Another meeting will be schedul-ed by MDOT itself to seek public input before the plans are finalized.

Weigh station/rest area?

The committee will also hear a presentation Tuesday regarding the possibility of building a truck weigh station/rest area somewhere along the Route 26 corridor.

MDOT's Tim Bolton said sugges-tions for possible station locations statewide came out of discussions with the State Police and trucking organizations. In addition to weigh stations, Bolton said there is also a need for rest areas to allow truckers to pull off the road and sleep. "We want to get the opinion of people in the area," he said, regarding their perception of the need and possible locations for either installation.

project (due to the lack of job creaion at Bethel Station), and four nonths after voters had approved n increase of more than $600,000 ithe total cost of the project,

Why, members of both boards sked, did Wright-Pierce not inform nem prior to those meetings that he town would probably be asked come up with additional money or engineering fees?

When the two boards met in late uly with Wright-Pierce representaive Roger Bedard, he conceded hat communication with the town ould have been better.

But he argued the increased cost ere legitimate and arose from a umber of factors.

Delays caused by the Bethel-tation-job-creation problem had icreased the complexity of the biding process, he noted, and enanced computer technology added to the project after the initial conact also required more engineering ávolvement. Also, he argued, unexpectedly oor soils at the site and unnticipated hydraulic problems at le old plant increased the demand or construction management and versight.

But some members of both boards bjected that as an engineering firm ith broad experience in such rojects, Wright-Pierce should have een able to anticipate -- and udget for -- such eventualities.

Following the July meeting, there ere a number of subsequent disissions regarding the matter, but o resolution has resulted.

Time running out

In an attempt to hold down ngineering fees, plant superintenent Rob Gundersen has taken on Iditional inspection respon-bilities, Town Manager Phil Tarr aid, but given the size and technial complexity of the project this in in the project budget.

itself will not be enough to deal with the shortfall.

The overall project is running smoothly now that the early soils and hydraulic problems have been dealt with, Gundersen told the two boards Monday.

Substantial completion is expected by mid-January, he said, and finishing up by early summer.

But funds in the engineering budget for project administration will run out by the middle of this month, and funds for construction inspection by the middle of December -- so town officials recognize that a resolution to the deadlock needs to be reached soon.

Monday evening executive session did not achieve that, but Tarr and Dutch Dresser, chairman of the Board of Selectmen, both said later that progress was being made.

Dresser assessed the situation as follows: "The selectmen and members of the Budget Committee met Monday evening to discuss engineering cost increases assessed by Wright-Pierce. In conversations with the town's attorney, the groupwas interested in considering the terms of the engineering contract and the nature of the newly as-sessed charges. The board and committee are moving carefully to ensure proper attention to all of their various responsibilities to the Sewer District's rate payers and to the town's taxpayers.'

Tarr said Wednesday he believed a consensus had been established on the boards that the increases were, at least in part, for legitimate and adequately documented reasons.

And, he noted, such increases are not unusual in projects of this scope and complexity.

If the town does agree to pay the additional money, he said, it could probably be shifted from elsewhere

Still, said Farrington, "I know every parent isn't happy." At a parent meeting about three weeks ago, some parents of fourth-graders particularly were worried their children might be held back by the third-graders, she said.

Some of the older children themselves were also apparently unhappy about being placed with younger children.

The meeting helped the situation some, Farrington believes, because parents were able to be open about their concerns and make Brooks aware of areas needing attention.

Lorraine Larson By the time you read this, the month will be half over, According to one theory, time seems longer when one is really busy. That, supposedly, is why time seems longer to children. We were really quite busy these past two weeks and I can't see where it made much difference. So much for theories.

Andy and I attended the Harvest Dinner at the Bethel Church of the Nazarene on Sunday. As usual, the food and fellowship were great, but the day was made a little somber by the fact that three of our church friends were in the hospital, Esther Sweetser, Muriel Hart and Josie Greenwood, and in three different places: Esther in Lewiston, Muriel in Norway and Josie in Berlin, We were fortunate to have the Maine district superintendent and his ant few hours of sickness, including wife, Rev. Roland and Reba Dunlop, with us. Mrs. Dunlop is the daughter of the late Rev. Joshua David and family came home on Wagner, who was also a district superintendent some 30 years back. Gerry Shimamura and I were in Berlin on Friday evening visiting Josie Greenwood at the hospital. We think she must be getting better as her feisty spirit is coming back. She still has two weeks of treatment to go through in Hanover, N.H. That won't be fun, but Josie is determined to get better.

opportunity to show itself, and show it he did when his "little girls" came to visit him twice this week. He never forgets, even though Michelle is quite a young lady now with Danielle not far behind and Jessie, who was only a baby when J-Poochie came to live with me, is now five, so there was one more to play with. Both he and Lucy got a workout which they thoroughly enjoyed. Jessie wanted to know how come I knew her when she didn't know me. I can remember how confusing it was to me when I was young -- all those people who knew me and I didn't know a one of them, So I explained and hopefully I won't be a stranger next time. By the way, J-P may have given up some of his bad habits but Lucy still thinks she's a garbage disposal. I like to put together jigsaw puzzles and I was looking at some the other day trying to decide which one to do next, Apparently I lost a piece onto the floor because I spied one in front of the couch just a few seconds before Lucy did, only she was quicker. Down her throat it went. I told her if I got the 1000-piece Rockwell puzzle together and I was missing one piece I'd make her eat the other 999 pieces for lunch. I was only half-joking. I am happy to report that Andy's blood pressure, although still a little high, is at a manageable level. He gave the doctor quite a scare a couple weeks ago when he went in for a routine checkup and his blood pressure was off the wall. And if the doctor is worried, it worries the rest of us. Andy has been remarkably healthy all his life, except for the fall off the ladder that shattered his leg, so this is a new experience for him.

spirit lurks within waiting for the in the pond this morning. One would think they would be on their way south by now. Are they waiting for others to fly over so they can join a flock, I wonder, and if so, what will they do if everyone else is gone already? Living here has got me wondering about many things I took for granted before, such as where do the turtles spend their winter and, if buried in the mud, how do they breathe? I shall have to spend a lot of my time this winter perusing the encyclopedias. Also, living here gives one glimpses of extraordinary beauty sometimes. I happened to be looking out over the water one afternoon when the trees across the pond and the water itself blazed in a bath of yellow-green color for about a minute, then faded back to its ordinary color. Just think, if I had not been looking at that particular minute I would have missed

Richard Grover I'm learning to hate this business of having a bank mortgage on my home. About six to eight months ago, I got wrongly accused of being late with a mortgage payment. Now, last Friday I got a letter from the bank saying that they checked and found that I had not paid my property taxes this fall. The letter went on to say the bank would withhold money from my payment each month to pay my taxes a year in advance if I did not respond within 30 days with proof of payment of my taxes, in the amount of $165 and some cents. Since I live in "unorganized territory," I pay property taxes straight to the Treasurer, State of Maine. I haven't checked yet, but I am assuming that since I sent a single check to pay the property tax on two plots of land plus personal property tax on my tractor, the state may not have credited me with paying of them, but I have the canceled check showing that all were paid in full. I just hate it when I get wrongfully accused of being a deadbeat. Now I got to go to all the trouble of writing letters and, hopefully, straightening this out.

Sunday River Valley

Rockie Graham Unbelievable. we've had an other beautiful week. Today's snow squall, followed by some rain, just proves it. Thursday was absolutely gorgeous. It was warm and sunny and it was hard to believe it wasn't a spring day. Finally, though, it is beginning to look like the winter season is upon

To back up that idea, area businesses are beginning to hire, spruce up and open up. Newry has few non-ski area businesses, so it is of more than passing interest when these businesses open for the season. Slopeside Market opened for the season on Friday and is now open seven days a week, offering food and dry goods, along with pizza and sandwiches to go. Jack Frost Ski Shop is also open, though not quite full-time, yet. Add to that, we have a new B & B about to open. Black Bear B & B is fixing up and going to reopen the Blueberry Mountain Inn (Telemark Inn and Llama Center before that). The Black Bear B & B will be run by Faith Spath and Phil Buell. Sunday River Inn is, of course, still open here in the Valley, also. I wish all our merchants the best during the upcoming season.

I don't know about anyone else, but I am getting ready to hunker down for the winter. The wood is in, the storms are being put up, the chimney is cleaned, and the snow tires are on the car. Add to that, the Florida-bound are beginning to leave us for the winter.

THE VIEW FROM BEHIND THE WHEEL-Crescent Park Elementary School students got a lesson last week in how to drive safely in the vicinity of 18-wheeler tractor trailer trucks. Jay Oliver, a driver for the Landstar trucking company of Rockford, III., brought his truck to CPS to demonstrate the danger of driving in blind spots around the truck. His rule of thumb: If a car driver cannot see one of the truck mirrors from the driver's location, the truck driver probably can't see the car. Nadeau Enterprises of Woodstock, which recently became an agent for Landstar, arranged the demonstration. Students also climbed into. the truck cab to see the road from the trucker's point of view. Third-grader Andrew Buck had to sit tall to get even a limited direct view of vans parked in front of and beside the cab (right). (Photos by Alison Aloisio)

'SAMANTHA" IS A FOUR-YEAR-OLD VERY LARGE BLACK CAT. She is spayed and up to date on her shots. She was rescued from a local animal shelter, as she did not like to be caged. She does not like dogs and likes to be an indoor cat. She would probably love to be the only cat, so she could get all the attention. At the shelter she was known to nip once in a while, but has not done so in her foster-care home. Probably Samantha would adjust better in an adult household. She is very loving and friendly. If you are interested in adopting Samantha, please call Kathy-Jo Farren at 836-2725 after 6 p.m.

'Nutcracker' coming to Bethel

Tickets are priced at $6 for children 12 and under and $8 for adults in advance, or $8 and $10 at the door.

Maine Handicapped Skiing

For the first time in its 17-year history, Maine Handicapped Skiing has scheduled downhill ski and snow-board lessons on Saturdays and Sundays at Sunday River Ski Resort. "We're very excited about this opportunity to attract a new cross-section of people who have a physical disability to winter sports," said executive director Betsy Doyon. "People who have Monday through Friday jobs will now be able to come to Sunday River and learn to ski and snowboard."

MHS will offer five ski or snowboard lessons on Saturdays, and 10 lessons on Sundays throughout their 10-week season, from January through March 1999. As with all other MHS lessons, they will be offered free of charge -- trained volunteer instruction and equipment are provided by MHS and lift tickets are provided by Sunday River Ski Resort. Anyone, age six or older, who has a physical disability is encouraged to sign up by contacting MHS at (800) 639-7770 or e-mail (info@skimhs.org).

Maine Handicapped Skiing is a nonprofit organization headquartered at Sunday River Ski Resort in Newry. MHS, a free program, brings the freedom of movement unique to winter sports to individuals who have a physical disability. MHS can be reached by phone at (800) 639-7770 or (207) 824-2440; by e-mail at (info@skimhs.org); by fax at (207) 824-0453; or via regular mail at RR 3 Box 1971, Newry, ME 04261. "SAMANTHA" IS A FOUR-YEAR-OLD VERY LARGE BLACK CAT. She is spayed and up to date on her shots. She was rescued from a local animal shelter, as she did not like to be caged. She does not like dogs and likes to be an indoor cat. She would probably love to be the only cat, so she could get all the attention. At the shelter she was known to nip once in a while, but has not done so in her foster-care home. Probably Samantha would adjust better in an adult household. She is very loving and friendly. If you are interested in adopting Samantha, please call Kathy-Jo Farren at 836-2725 after 6 p.m.

From the

Bethel Conservation Commission

If you're recycling all the paper products you can, you're already saving the town a lot of money, but here's some ways to save even more by helping the town get the highest prices for the recycled paper. This extra money helps everyone's tax bill.

Don't use the Mixed Paper bin for anything that qualifies for the muchhigher-priced categories of office paper (highest), newspapers, corrugated cardboard, and magazines and junk mail. One example is brown paper bags, which can go in the Corrugated Cardboard bin.

Also, any part of junk mail that is office-type paper can go in the office paper bin. And if a magazine or other document is office-type paper on the inside, with only the cover glossy, the cover can be removed for the Magazine bin and the rest included with Office Paper. Finally, take time to read the instructions carefully to avoid contamination of a bin with improper materials, since this lowers the price the town can realize.

Each year a Christmas Gift Shop takes place at the Maine Veterans Homes and at the V.A. facility at Togus. Donations of gifts or money to buy gifts are made by Auxiliary Units and other organizations. The residents are able to come to the shop to select gifts for their loved ones and these are wrapped and shipped by volunteers from the various Auxiliary Units. This year, as usual, donations were voted for both the Western Maine Veterans Home in South Paris and to Togus. Another donation was voted for Camp Tall Pines in memory of Warren Pierce whose daughter, Anita Hakala, though a member of another Auxiliary Unit, has been a faithful helper of Jackson-Silver Unit. Sincere condolences are extended to all members of the family.
